ADVANCE OF MOTION PICTURES

T WAS less than ten years ago that the limit of extravagance for making a motion picture was $500. These were played to 5-cent admissions. Now we spend $500,000 on a picture and crowd the theaters everywhere at an admission ranging from 25 cents to two dollars a seat. The cost of a motion picture production against a legitimate stage production is so much less that the motion pictures are fast taking the place of the legitimate.

The motion picture is no longer an infant art. It is the newest, but also the most graphic, form of dramatic expression and there is no end to where it can be carried. It looks like the day is coming when the motion picture will not only compare with the legitimate stage, but will be on a parity with the finest productions of grand opera and at corresponding prices of admis-

There is now in the field what is known as the Triangle Film corporation of New York-California, backed by Wall street capital and headed by the greatest directors in the business, and their object is to produce photoplays that will command a price of admission of from two dollars and up, and it looks much like their object will be fully accomplished. The motion picture business holds forth greater opportunities and has a greater future than any other known business today. It has so far in its short life made many multimillionaires, and it will make many more in a shorter time. The Nevada Film Company, Inc., of Tonopah, hopes to be the means of assisting a few to the

DRUGS AND THE WAR

NE of the several silver linings to the war cloud is that the United States is about to be threatened by a drug famine. It may prove to be one of the most advantageous features of the conflict, for as a nation we have been drugging ourselves to death. An old physician once said to the Bonanza that in his many years' experience he only was able to prove the efficacy of four groups of medicine, and even those were to be used with caution. He said they were alcohol, quinine, quicksfiver and opium. Of course there are many entries in the register book of materia medica that have proved worth, such as rheubarb, salts, other substances acting upon the intestinal tract, as well as digestive aids such as the pancreatic fluid of hogs, while there are nerve quieters, tonics and what nots, but the point is that practically all of the needed medicines, except those for which a false necessity has been created, may be produced in the United States, or so nearly all that the present war need not affect prices or the volume of supply.

BRUTALITIES OF WAR

No excuses, whatever their character, can justify those brutalities of warfare which are visited upon non-combatant men and innocent women and children. Air raids upon cities outside the regular firing line and not duly notified of the intended assault are gross barbarities no matter by what side they are perpetrated, says the San Francisco Chronicle.

These are strong words, but they are not adequate to the brutality against which they are directed. They are not partial words, for they apply to all or nearly all the belligerents, and it must be remembered that those so far innocent of such atrocities are innocent only by virtue of an insufficiency of the necessary means.

The British, French, Belgians, Serbians, Russians, Italians and Monte negrins have not used Zeppelins, but only for the simplest of reasons—they have none. But they have bomb-carrying aeroplanes, and they have not hesi tated to use them in much the same way as the Zeppelins. It is the spirit or the intention and not the means that counts. The death toll against either side is not the point, which is that both are equally willing to do much the same thing.

This talk of the British indulging in reprisals for the Zeppelin raids is as hypocritical as it is foolish. What reprisals have they refrained from? None that they were in a position to make. The Zeppelin attacks have so far failed of any military significance, unless it be a stimulus to recruiting. For one innocent killed in England probably a dozen men have enlisted, and as the Teutons are already under compulsory military service England cannot stimulate recruiting in the enemy territory by counter attacks on undefended towns, even if she is in a position to do more than she has done. War is war and cannot be altered during its progress, but when this great struggle is over the civilized world will probably unite in an effort to limit aircraft to purely military operations.
